

MERCURY LACED VACCINES: COVER UP

Does your baby weigh over 500 lbs? According to the EPA a person must weigh over 500 lbs to safely process the amount of mercury still present in certain vaccines and flu shots. Infants are exposed to mercury levels from their childhood immunization schedules which far exceed the EPA and FDA established maximum permissible levels.

Several studies report an association between mercury exposure and increased risk of heart disease and neurodevelopment disorders. Despite numerous scientific evidence, from our best universities, showing mercury laced vaccines kill brain and immune cells and is linked to the current Autism epidemic, these shots are still recommended for pregnant women and infants.

Because of the data implicating mercury levels with increasing rates of autism, speech disorders, and heart disease, it would seem prudent to completely remove mercury from all childhood vaccines immediately.

On July 7, 1999, the American Academy of Pediatrics and the US Public Health Service issued a joint statement calling for the removal of mercury from vaccines, prompted by a risk assessment from the FDA. They vowed to remove mercury from vaccines, but they have failed and refused to honor promises made.

Contrary in fact to these promises, the Centers for Disease Control (CDC) manipulated scientific data published in the November issue of Pediatrics to suggest no link exists between neurological disorders such as autism and mercury in childhood vaccines in favor of vaccine manufacturers.

Cover ups, lies, and deception on the part of the federal government continues as they knowingly allow mercury to be injected into pregnant women and children and even encourages it. It is to be hoped that complete removal of mercury from all childhood vaccines will help to stem the tragic, apparently iatrogenic epidemic of autism the United States is now facing; however, until then, demand only mercury free vaccines. Mercury free vaccines are available, but you have to ask for them.
