

SKIN BRUSHING

The skin is the largest of the four major eliminative organs. It is often referred to as the “third kidney.” For maximum health it is necessary that all eliminative channels are open and working. A healthy individual should eliminate about 1/3 the amount of waste matter through the skin as through the other eliminative systems each day.

Brushing the skin daily with a loofa sponge, NOT a nylon or synthetic fiber brush, aids the skin in this elimination. It also helps maintain the tone and suppleness of the skin, which helps prevent wrinkles and reduce the unsightly look of cellulite. It is highly beneficial and inexpensive. Some of the benefits you can be expected to see are:

It will remove the dead layers of skin and impurities and keep the pores open

It will stimulate and increase blood circulation

It will revitalize and increase eliminative capacity of your skin

It will stimulate the hormone-producing and oil-producing glands

It will stimulate nerve endings in the skin

It will help prevent colds by eliminating toxic buildup

It will contribute to a healthier muscle tone and a better distribution of fat deposits

It will give your skin a younger, healthier and more velvety appearance

DRY BRUSH MASSAGE

This is a health and beauty secret which will only take 5-10 minutes a day of your time.

You must get a suitable brush. It should have a long handle so you can reach all parts of your body. It is best to get a natural-bristle brush about the size of your hand or larger. Starting with the soles of your feet, brush vigorously with rotary motions, massaging every part of your body. Press the brush against the skin as much as you can comfortably stand. Brush first the feet and legs, then the hands and arms, back abdomen, chest and neck areas.

The face, inner thighs, abdomen and chest are the most sensitive areas, and care should be taken so that you are not overly rough in those spots. Do not brush the skin if it is irritated in any way. The scalp should also be brushed gently to stimulate improved circulation to the hair follicles.

Brush until your skin becomes rosy, warm and glowing, 5-10 minutes. The best times are upon rising in the morning and then again before retiring for the night. Since the technique loosens up dead layers of skin, it is advisable to take a shower or rub-down with a sponge or wet towel after using the technique.

An alternative hot/cold shower followed by a brisk rub-down is also beneficial. A warm shower is also acceptable, but the hot/cold method has a stimulating effect on the skin.

Rub or massage your body with the following nourishing oil immediately after dry-brushing. Any cold-pressed vegetable oil obtained can be used.

The formula below can be made easily and efficiently. This formula is composed of the most beautifying oils known to man, and it will do wonders for your skin. It will help prevent wrinkles and premature aging of the skin.

1 T wheat germ oil 4 T avocado oil

2 T almond oil 5 T sesame oil
3 T olive oil few drop of perfume

Pour the ingredients into a clean empty bottle and shake well. Store in the refrigerator. Do not use too much; a few drops will go a long way. Apply more on the face, neck, hands, and arms.

Be sure to keep your brush clean. Clean with soap and water about every two weeks and dry in the sun or a warm place.

Warning: Don not use nylon or synthetic fiber brushes, they are too sharp and may damage the skin. It is advisable to begin with a softer brush and use a gentle touch until our skin is seasoned and then graduate to a courser natural bristle.
